GOD, GIVE US THE WORLD FOR CHILDREN

MORE THAN 10 YEARS AGO,
MY WIFE, CHRISTI, AND I BEGAN TO PRAY THIS SIMPLE, YET CHALLENGING PRAYER: “GOD, GIVE US THE WORLD FOR CHILDREN.”

For more than a decade, this prayer has been on our lips and in our hearts. Our staff knows it well, and many of our partners and friends have heard it. This prayer is our organization’s compelling and driving force, and God has led us into more communities and countries with expanded programs that are meeting urgent needs and providing lasting hope to more vulnerable children and struggling families than ever before.

In 2018, we sat at the table with world leaders to create initiatives that can transform lives, we played a part in breathtaking family reunifications locally and globally, we wept over the trauma and tragedy we saw children in the midst of, and we celebrated redeemed lives of children and families who thought all was lost.

In 2018, we impacted more than 249,000 children and provided more than 7 million meals at FBCH and One More Child, because God answered that simple prayer. God opened new doors of opportunity to “give us the world for children,” and because of you and your giving, we were able to run to meet the needs of children. People, churches, businesses and influential leaders walked faithfully through those doors with us doing what they love most: helping those who need it most.

When a single mother of seven shared her excitement about what we were providing her kids at our Before the Bus back-to-school event, I reflected on how God is giving us the world for children.

When I sat in the middle of a group of beautiful South African children who were being fed and being taught Bible stories, I reflected on how God is giving us the world for children.

As I watched a press conference and saw our Anti-Trafficking team talking about how they were able to meet the needs of sex trafficking victims during a law enforcement sting, I reflected on how God is giving us the world for children.

In 2019, our prayer will remain steadfast, and my hope is that you will see how God is giving us the world for children and that he is using each of your special gifts and unique talents to bring our prayer to fruition.

WHEREVER CHILDREN ARE, WE ARE HEADED

In 2018, God opened new doors and new ways to meet the needs of more children, locally and globally. To the right, you will see a few examples of what that looks like.

DO WHAT YOU LOVE THE MOST TO HELP THOSE WHO NEED IT THE MOST.

LIZETTE LOVES NUMBERS.

She also loves to serve others and tell people about Jesus. She started helping out at FBCH and One More Child by volunteering in the office for several years.

Then she took her love for numbers a step further and began teaching budgeting classes to single moms.

Volunteer Lizette Batterton teaches budgeting classes for Single Moms, helping them learn how to take control of their money and become self-sufficient.

One single mom, Tomosa, said that Lizette taught her to account for every receipt and to have a game plan for each month – life-changing principles for her family. While in our Single Moms program, Tomosa had car trouble and encountered a steep bill. But because of her commitment to saving and planning for emergencies, she was able to pay for the repairs and continue driving to work each day to provide for herself and her two children.

When you volunteer, when you give and when you pray for our organization, you are a catalyst for changed lives by simply doing what you love most.

Asia* is known by her teacher and peers to be a model 3rd-grader who is a star performer. That's why her teacher was shocked to observe Asia stealing snacks and cookies from her classroom on Mondays.

Asia's teacher learned that Asia's mom had fallen on hard times, and it was not uncommon for Asia and her family to miss several meals on the weekend.

The teacher reached out to One More Child for help, and now through our Backpack Program, Asia, and children just like her, take home backpacks full of nutritious food to enjoy on weekends.

Asia no longer steals food at school, and because of the food provided by One More Child, she can focus on other things, like God's amazing plans for her life.

Food for Thought

One thing we know at One More Child is that feeding people leads to transformative relationships. Check out this heartfelt testimony from a team member from one of our mission trips to the Malnutrition Center in Guatemala:

During our first day, one of the nannies handed me a plate of food and asked me to feed one of the youngest boys in the daycare. He was sitting in a wooden highchair, firmly strapped into place by a long piece of fabric tied around his waist. This little man had difficulty holding his head up and controlling some of his larger body movements, yet when he saw the spoon filled with food, he responded with an open mouth. Immediately as he opened his mouth for food, I recalled scripture from Matthew 6:25-34 where Jesus instructs us not to worry about what we will eat. The next day, I was also asked to feed the same little boy, whose name I learned was Jose. Every single time I called him by name, his face responded with such joy, and the widest grin spread across his face. Here I was feeding this toddler life-giving nutrition, while the Holy Spirit was doing the same thing for me!

SINGLE MOMS

Joandy, a graduate of our Single Moms program, with her daughter, Lilly, and the First Lady of Guatemala at a special event One More Child hosted in Jacksonville

Joandy grew up with five siblings and a single mom who worked constantly and struggled with mental illness. Joandy's childhood was difficult, and she was determined to offer her children a better life. She grew up without a model blueprint for success, and she struggled because of that.

It was hard on her children, but they had finally found some solid footing – or so they thought.

One night, Joandy awoke to loud bangs, flashes of light and chaotic yelling. Her children were lying in bed as she was told to “get on the ground” by officers. Unknown to her, the house she was renting a room in was a drug house, and law enforcement raided it that night.

She was once again looking for a safe haven for her family. Putting food on the table for her children each day became a challenge as she battled depression and anxiety.

Then, one day at work, a colleague who had graduated from our Single Moms program told her about the holistic care the program offered.

Soon, Joandy was learning vital life skills through classes and was able to focus on her children because she knew they had a safe place to live. Her daughter finally had her own bedroom, new clothing and enough stability in her life to feel comfortable making friends.

The everyday stress in her life was replaced by everyday hope, as mentors encouraged her to dig into the Bible and work on her relationship with the Lord.

Joandy recommitted her life to God, and she also found renewed purpose at work, where she eventually earned a promotion. When Joandy graduated from Single Moms, she had saved

WHAT SOME OF THE BRAVE MOMS IN OUR PROGRAM ARE SAYING:

“Thank you for everything that you all have done for my family. We are so blessed and grateful for this program. I know it is time to leave the program, but I have grown in so many ways. ‘My kids want to live here forever...lol!’”

“My kids are feeling safer than ever.”

“The program taught me so much discipline about my finances.”

“The program provided us peace of mind throughout the end of my pregnancy, and I was able to deliver a healthy baby girl. The program has also helped me with a new car that is safe to take my kids around in.”

enough money for her family to purchase a home. As she says, “I am showing my daughter that through Christ all things are possible!”

Empowering Moms Globally

Through our Nursing Mother's program in Guatemala, we are equipping young mothers to be the spiritual and physical providers for their precious children, who are often malnourished when they arrive to our program.

Our staff, as well as incredible women who go on mission with us, teach the women important skills they need as a mother, lead Bible studies for them, teach them to cook and even pamper them on occasion to remind them of their value as one created in God's image.

FOSTER CARE

Happy Endings Do Still Happen

In 2018, Kari and Justin Preston celebrated the adoption of their daughter, Mariah, a little more than a year after becoming licensed foster parents with One More Child. They admit the journey was scary and stressful, but those difficulties were greatly outweighed by the overwhelming joy Mariah brought to their lives.

The foster care community and our compassionate staff supported them and guided them through this life-changing adventure. The Prestons are excited about continuing to invite children from tough places into their home as foster parents, and their prayer is that more people (like the ones reading this publication) would pray about how God would use them to change lives through foster care!

MARIAH

It's Not Where You Start That Counts

Carolyn*, who was born with a bilateral cleft lip/palate, and her siblings were in and out of foster care until she reached the age of 7, when they were adopted. Unfortunately, this adoption failed, and when Carolyn was 12 years old, she and her siblings returned to foster care and were placed in different group homes.

For years, Carolyn's behavior became increasingly disruptive until she went to live with the Copelands*, a One More Child-licensed foster family. Carolyn appeared to adjust well at first but then became increasingly defiant for many months. Eventually, the Copelands' steadfast love paid dividends as Carolyn started to make better choices when she realized the family was committed to her.

At the end of 2018, Carolyn was in the process of being adopted by the Copelands and receiving specialized counseling to meet her unique needs. She was scheduled for surgeries to repair her palate, lip and nose.

Already, her academics have improved drastically, and she is consistently on the honor roll. She has joined the Young Marines and has been named their "Honor Recruit," achieving a perfect score on their written exam and the highest score on their physical fitness test. Furthermore, in recognition of the progress that Carolyn has made, the Florida State Foster and Adoptive Parent Association has recognized her as the 2018 recipient of their Rising Star Youth Award.

A True Team Effort

One More Child foster parents received a call about two brothers who had been removed from their family's home because their 2-month-old brother, Luke*, had been beaten so severely that he was not expected to survive through the night.

Immediately, foster parents stepped up to open their home to the brothers. At the same time, One More Child foster parents volunteered to be by Luke's side at the hospital.

That family drove from more than an hour away to sit with him, pray for him, sing over him and care for him, as if he were their own child.

Throughout the night, a network of One More Child foster parents prayed for him.

Baby Luke not only lived through the night, but in the Lord's mercy, he began to thrive!

After several weeks of care, he was able to be discharged from the hospital and was placed with his brothers in a loving One More Child foster home.

Foster Care Live

If you can bring up hilarious cat videos and your favorite songs from sixth grade with a swipe or a tap, why not share the incredible, transformative opportunity to help children and families through foster care in innovative ways online?

That was our objective when we invited DCF and other expert panelists to be part of our Facebook Live event in 2018.

Our staff led an evening that allowed thousands of people to see a dynamic perspective on child welfare in Florida, and that included a foster dad sharing real-life experiences as well as professionals answering tough questions and debunking myths about foster care.

ANTI-TRAFFICKING

The Everyday Fight to End Trafficking

Each day our Anti-Trafficking team is asked to intervene in unimaginable situations, the painful realities of many children and individuals. Here is a behind-the-scenes glimpse at one such “day in the life” from 2018.

1. The Department of Children and Families (DCF) calls us to assist Amber*, a 16-year-old trafficking victim who is pregnant.
2. Several hours later, our staff stands with Amber in court as a judge determines her next steps.
3. Amber is ordered to return to her home state, and our staff is asked to accompany her on her flight back.
4. Amber shares with our staff her desire to be reunited with a “mother figure” in her hometown.
5. Our staff begins tirelessly advocating for Amber, recognizing many children like her fall through the cracks.
6. Amber is relieved to have someone guide her through this painful whirlwind in her life, and our staff is able to instill a new hope for her life and for her unborn child.
7. Our staff celebrates the opportunity we had to make an impact and gets ready for whatever the next day holds.

Dr. Jerry Haag, President/CEO, (far left), and Anti-Trafficking Executive Director Christa Hicks (to Haag's immediate right) were in the Oval Office earlier this year when President Trump signed a vital piece of bipartisan anti-trafficking legislation.

Our President / CEO Dr. Jerry Haag and his wife, Christi, celebrate our partnership with the First Lady of Guatemala.

We Will Not Stop Until No Child Is Trafficked

In 2018, our leadership and expertise in Anti-Trafficking crossed new borders and achieved new heights.

One More Child led several Anti-Trafficking conferences in the Dominican Republic, with the support of President Danilo Medina, and joined forces with the First Lady of Guatemala, Patricia de Morales, to host an Anti-Trafficking conference at the National Palace in Guatemala City (in January 2019).

Our excellence in the fight to end child sex trafficking also reached the ears of influencers and leaders in Washington D.C. We are working with federal leaders in departments such as the Department of Human and Health Services, and our staff was invited to the Oval Office for President Trump's signing of a vital piece of bipartisan anti-trafficking legislation in early 2019.

We hosted Traffick Stop in Tallahassee to bring together legislators, anti-trafficking advocates, professionals and non-profits, with the goal of spurring on greater action to protect vulnerable children and to educate the masses about the role they play in stopping the sexual exploitation of children.

Once Angry, Now Overcoming

When Kelsey* arrived at our safe home for victims of trafficking, she regularly expressed her anger in intense outbursts. She had been abandoned by her parents as an infant, and at 14 years old, she was thrust into being the "family provider" when her adoptive parents became ill. She began selling drugs and quickly became entangled with older men who groomed her for the sex trade.

Kelsey showed many symptoms from the exploitation she endured. Our coaches used our model of care that includes grace, respect and boundaries to work through those feelings created by trauma.

Our expert staff provide safe spaces for victims of trafficking to grapple with their pain and find healing.

When Kelsey began to express herself more through words, she shared that her angry outbursts were symptoms of sadness in her heart. She continues to bravely confront her past and focus on God's love for her and His dream for her future. Kelsey* is brilliant and kind, and she has hopes of one day being a brain surgeon.

Christa Hicks, executive director of Anti-Trafficking, shared vital information about trafficking prevention with teens in Guatemala earlier this year.

MULTIPLICATION THROUGH TRAINING

Our staff continues to train professionals in a variety of industries about signs and symptoms of trafficking and their role in preventing it. Some of the groups One More Child trained in 2018 were:

- DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES CASE MANAGERS
- DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE EMPLOYEES
- EMERGENCY ROOM EMPLOYEES AT HOSPITALS
- GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES AND LEADERS IN DEVELOPING NATIONS
- CHURCHES
- COMMUNITY MEMBERS
- TEENAGERS

FAMILY SUPPORT

A Trusted Back-to-School Partner

Through our annual Before the Bus event, we prepared kids for the first period bell on the opening day of school by providing them backpacks full of essential supplies, fresh haircuts, physicals, clothing and more.

Throughout the state, we helped more than 4,000 children and families start the school year off right, including hundreds of military families who make an incredible sacrifice for our country.

A Room Full of Balloons

Despite enduring the hardships associated with a challenging work schedule and being a single mom, Carlie* is a great champion of her boys.

Through our Family Support services, Carlie has been working to better herself through life skills workshops, and One More Child has also provided her with food, clothing and other necessities.

What a Joy It Is to Give

One way One More Child was blessed to be a giver in 2018 was by hosting an enormous toy-packing party with WWE Superstar Titus O'Neil and Walmart.com staff, along with other community partners, at our Harold Clark Simmons Compassion Center.

We packed more than 13,000 toys that were distributed to children and families in need at Raymond James Stadium in Tampa at the Joy of Giving Event.

One More Child also supports her through the challenges she faces with her 7-year-old son Lucas* who is autistic. As part of that support, we provided Carlie with a special birthday kit that a generous donor put together.

When Carlie unpacked the kit, she found cake mix, frosting, plates, cups, napkins and red balloons – and red just happens to be Lucas’ favorite color. Carlie said Lucas was ecstatic when he awoke to the decorations on his big day.

“The balloons were his favorite part! I think he would have been happy if that were the only thing I did for his birthday! He played with them all week!”

Through providing food, education and a special birthday treat, One More Child was able to display God’s love to one more family!

Growing Up with Us

Gerson and Andres, a pair of fun-loving, high-energy twins, were a staple at the Malnutrition Center in Guatemala. For most of their lives, they were provided nutritious meals, education, spiritual nourishment and their everyday needs by staff at the center, as well as thousands of short-term missionaries who joined us on mission trips to Guatemala. The boys constantly made people laugh and smile, and our mission trip team members enjoyed seeing them grow and develop.

Then, after many years of prayer, Gerson and Andres were finally able to go home in 2018, just in time for Christmas! They were reunited with their mother, and as they left the Malnutrition Center, an assembly line of staff members applauded the twins as they bounded off with their bags packed and hopes set high.

At One More Child, we are strong advocates of family reunification when it is in the best interest of the child, and we do all we can to provide wraparound support in cases like this. Our global team worked tirelessly to prepare the boys and family to navigate the many psychological, emotional and financial challenges they could encounter. A physician, a nutritionist, a social worker and a psychologist worked as a team to demonstrate appropriate behaviors and skills through which they helped equip the young family for all of the change they would be experiencing.

Countless lives have been touched by Gerson and Andres (Shown in photo, in red shirt and flannel shirt). We thank God for providing a way for them to be reintroduced to their biological family and the community they live in, and we pray for the impact they will make in their homes and in their circles of influence for years to come.

OTHER CREATIVE SERVICES TO HELP CHILDREN AND FAMILIES

Emergency Shelter

Eight-year-old Kaden* pulled up his pant leg to show his caregivers on our Miami campus scars from abuse he endured before arriving at FBCH. As he shared about his traumatic past, the caregivers shared with him that one day in heaven he would no longer have those scars.

They talked with Kaden about what it meant to follow Jesus and accept him as his Savior. Kaden made the decision to ask Christ into his life, and his caregivers prayed over him in this eternity-changing moment.

We are thankful that Jesus' sacrifice makes it possible for us to share everlasting hope for children who are physically and emotionally scarred.

Sanctity of Human Life

The work that we do today matters for tomorrow because every step toward helping more children and families is a step that God blesses.

In 2018, our Sanctity of Human Life program saw the fruits of its ongoing mentorship and leadership in Living Hope Baptist Church in Bowling Green, Kentucky.

Throughout the year, our staff shepherded the church through the process of establishing its own pregnancy care center. The goal was to expand its existing Biblical Counseling ministry. They valued our ability to share the successes of pregnancy care centers that we partner with in Florida. We worked with Living Hope staff to help them develop operational procedures and to be prepared for the day when women facing unplanned pregnancies would come to them and find hope.

In January 2019, all of the faithful work came to fruition with the grand opening of the Hope Center for Pregnancy.

"We have come a long way, and we are not stopping now," a pastor at Living Hope said. "We can't wait to see the story God writes years from now as women and families continue to walk through these doors of HOPE."

Those stories began almost immediately upon the center opening. In the first week, there were 10 clients and seven ultrasounds. Each person heard the Gospel message and experienced the compassion of the Lord's mercy, truth and love.

We believe God never intended for people to walk broken roads alone. At FBCH and One More Child, we celebrate incredible ministry partners that make it their priority to shine light in dark places.

A vintage-looking sign hanging on the wall of the new pregnancy center says it best: "All of God's grace in one tiny face."
